Go, change the world

EDITORIAL

The infamous pandemic and the ensuing pandemonium not only emptied the campus causing social and physical isolation, but also transformed teachers into eager learners. Even a hard core Luddite was drawn in to the web world of technology where software experts instructed us how to teach; the curriculum had decided what to teach.

We had to revisit the definition of 'Meaningful Education' and reach out to our stranded, home-bound students who longed for more in life than texts. We had to overcome the evident societal and technological divides through the genie of 'Zoom' or 'Microsoft teams'. It was our chosen endeavour to bridge the technological 'haves' and 'have-nots'. The brand new NEP 2020 was timely and acted like a guiding star. Yet, there were dimensions that could only be dealt with humane considerations. Whether one taught chemistry or English, Kannada or Botany, our teachers took on the roles of friends, counsellors and healers in mediating with their students' pain, anguish and suffering.

Every one of us understood that only by achieving our goals with those of the students, could we enhance freedom and success.

Among the eleven social indicators, in the 'Better Life Index' of OECD (Organisation for Economic Cooperation and Development), one is education. As Educators, we have just one good to achieve – "Knowledge", (In spite of the present impediments) that promotes a person to make wise, healthy and profitable decisions that ensures a meaningful Life. To achieve this success, we need to adopt the OECD strategy:
Swift to Adapt
Slow to Resist
Open to Change.

Incessant Dedication- The need of the hour

Exam committee preparing for online exams

The outbreak of Coronavirus disease (COVID-19) has had a global impact on all the sectors of the society. Millions of employees have lost their jobs, labourers are displaced and many other domains have come to a standstill situation. Educational sector is no exception to this. Conducting examinations, completing syllabus, taking virtual classes, giving assignments, following up the remedial classes has become a daunting task for educational institutions. On the other hand, parents are in a state of confusion about admitting their children for the next academic year. Students are expected to defer the start of their studies for their undergraduate degree to a later year due to the pandemic.

Our college was successful at foreseeing this situation and took all necessary steps required for the smooth running of this academic year. Our Principal, Dr. Snehalata G Nadiger took the initiative of conducting online classes by inspiring the faculty members to adopt innovative methods of teaching and giving assignments. The college effectively reached more than 75% of students through online classes. Project work and assignments were monitored and graded online.

Two week of additional classes were conducted for clarification of doubts and revision of syllabus. Few topics were pre-recorded and streamed on YouTube to overcome the problem of network connectivity. The college organized a series of webinars in which faculty members from various departments delivered lectures on topics pertaining to education and current situation of pandemic. The college website was extensively used to communicate with the students, display syllabus, exam time table and other necessary circulars. Also, admissions for the academic year 2020-21 are done through the college website along with the regular walk-in system.

The college are happy to announce that we successfully conducted online examination to all the students of I, II and III year students. With the constant supervision of the examination committee and assistance of class teachers we could monitor, track and also help students with regard to technical and network issues.

For the next academic year, the college ready with a multifaceted digital learning approach that addresses both short and long term goals while adjusting the risks. Though we are fully aware that the journey of empowering a full-scale digital transformation at short notice is not a cakewalk, with the existing education content, we are planning and aligning the curriculum to make it accessible to the students.

Taking into account the recommendations made by the UNESCO, the college is determined to address the following issues before the commencement of next academic year.

- Examine the readiness and choose the most relevant tools:

By examining the digital skills of teachers and students, we have planned on implementing a range of digital learning platforms through video lessons, online classes etc.

- Prioritize solutions to address psychosocial challenges before teaching:

To address possible psychological challenges that students may face, regular interactions with respective subject teachers will be ensured.

- Provide support to teachers and parents on the use of digital tools:

Teaching faculty will be trained and orientation sessions will be organized to help them with basic settings and find solutions to technical issues.

- Develop distance learning rules and monitor students' learning process:

Making aware of the concept of distance learning rules and designing formative questions, tests and exercises to monitor students' learning process.

Online admission for academic year

From the Principal's Desk

The global pandemic of Covid-19 has triggered an alarm about the growing void between nature and mankind. It's time we reconsider our actions, understand the purpose of life and establish a cordial relationship with the ecosystem around us.

As the saying goes, to improve is to change; to be perfect is to change often. We at NMKRV College for Women have embraced the changes and taken all necessary steps to move forward with the 'new normal'.

I am happy to announce that the college is conducting online examinations for I, II and III year Degree and PG students without any glitches. During lockdown, our dedicated team of teachers has taken online classes, conducted revisions and organized webinars to students. We are also gearing up for online classes to be conducted in the next semester

Let's pray for this to end soon and stand united to combat the epidemic.

INDEPENDENCE DAY
