The adage of 'education for all' being changed to 'learning for all' implying skill to be given more importance in education so that students are employable. The College is gearing up towards this and providing skill oriented courses mandatorily. Courses on computer skills, designing, Tally, life skills, Bioinformatics etc are taught with tie-ups with external agencies.

The Indira Gandhi National Open University has started a centre at the College and is offering different courses from this academic year. The centre provides an opportunity to continue the studies for those who cannot study through regular mode. The courses offered at this centre have seen good number of admissions.

The College has introduced BA Ed and BSc Ed 4 year integrated courses. This will help students to be employed immediately as teachers after the completion of the degree.

The College is looking forward to an active 2019 with many innovative programmes and activities. This issue of Vartha Vahini carries a new column 'Spotlight' which is an interview with an alumnus who is an achiever in her own right, apart from the usual articles that appears regularly. Vartha Vahini wishes all its readers a very happy 2019 and Republic Day.

TEACHING TEACHERS TO TEACH

YAMINI CHINCHOLI III BA

The inauguration of BA, B.Ed and B.Sc B.Ed classes were held on 5th September, 2018 in B.Ed seminar hall.

Dr. Anitha Kurup, Dean, National Institute of Advanced Studies was the chief guest and Sri B.R. Vishwanath Shetty, trustee, RSS Trust presided over the function. Dr. Snehalata G. Nadiger, Principal welcomed the gathering.

Dr. Anitha said, 'Teaching is a Noble profession and now we require to make a few changes in the teaching field as education itself is undergoing changes. Teachers are the role models to students and society. The learning is being enriched due to the technological innovations and a need is seen to have an interactive method of knowledge dissemination with skill based learning'.

In his presidential remarks, Sri B.R. Vishwanath Shetty expressed his happiness about the commencement of the new course and wished all success.

Sri Syed Shahameer, Registrar, RSS Trust, Dr. S.N. Srimathi, Vice Principal, Smt. Susheelamba M. N, Coordinator, HODs, staff and students graced the occasion. The event concluded with a vote of thanks.

RACHANA BM II BA

On 28th September 2018, the teachers and students witnessed a play “who was he?” at Mangala Mantapa. It was an effort from the Natya forum to showcase the talents and to create interest about theatre among the youth.

The play was directed by Sri Prasanna G.V. (Arjun Vamshajaa), a graduate of NINASAM. Sharan and Swaroop were the assistant directors. The play aimed at creating awareness about the communal harmony and was effectively presented on stage. The entire story revolves around two babies belonging to two different communities who were exchanged during their birth in the hospital which leads to communal tension in the village. The fundamentalists try to add fuel to the pyre. But, finally the mothers’ love gives solution to all the problems. The performances of the actors, narration and presentation of the story were effective. Costumes and properties used in the play were apt. Ms. Swathi Pandit, Ms. Jaisri Shruthi and Ms. Dhathree Aithal handled the music efficiently. The play received a standing ovation by the audience.

LEARNING : A CONTINUOUS PROCESS

The staff of NMKRV at the Samruddhi Club.

A one day outbound Faculty Development Program was organized for teaching and non-teaching staff of the College by IQAC Cell on 22nd December 2018 at Samruddhi World Club. The activities at the resort were conducted by the professionals from 'The School of Leadership'. All the activities were task oriented and aimed at inculcating team work.

The first activity was 'push the ball to the goal post' in which team coordination, team speed and peer encouragement was focused upon. The second was a modified snooker game, highlighting the importance of concentration, coordination and listening skills. Post lunch, the teams were asked to build a missile launcher using the resources provided which encouraged the team members to think 'out of the box' using minimum resources. In the last activity, the participants were blindfolded and asked to reach their targets by concentrating on the instructions given by the team leader.

In the outdoor activities participants opened up to new challenges and experienced various communicative skills.

SPOTLIGHT

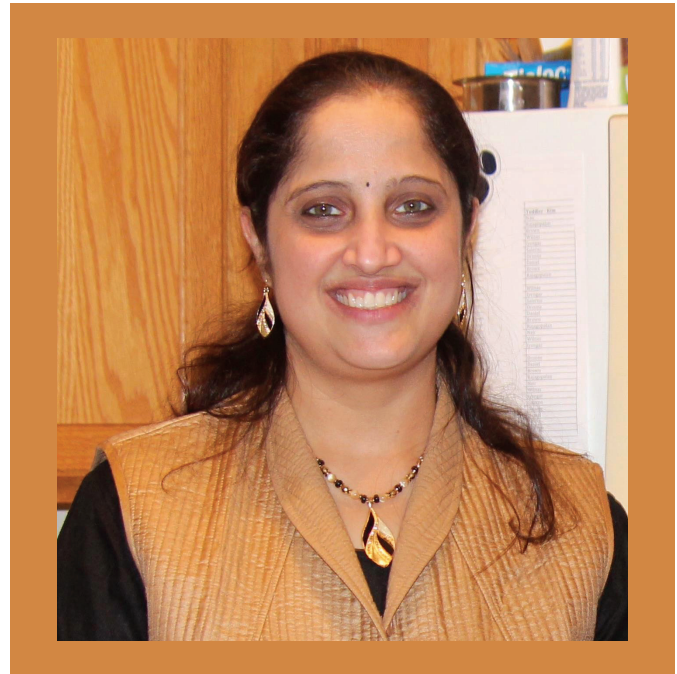

Vartha Vahini from this issue has started a regular column 'Spotlight' which is an interview with the alumni of the College. The column attempts to highlight the achievements of many alumni who have excelled in various fields. This gives an exposure to the students as well as the other readers of Vartha Vahini about how the alumni have contributed to the growth of the institution. They are the torchbearers of the college who have projected the institutions for aeons.

This issue has an excerpt of an interview with Ms. Saraswathi Bellur, Assistant Professor, Department of Communications, University of Connecticut. A former student of Journalism, Optional English and Psychology, she graduated in the year 2000 and did her post graduation from University of Mysore and an other PG from Iowa State University, USA. She completed her doctorate from Pennsylvania State University. She has a number of research affiliations and her papers have been cited by many researchers.

Here are the excerpts:

1. Briefly tell us about your journey from NMKRV as a student of Journalism, Optional English and Psychology to being an Assistant Professor in the University of Connecticut.

I cherish the time I spent at NMKRV, getting introduced to the fields of Journalism, Optional English and Psychology. The wonderful community of amazing mentors and like-minded peers has left a lasting impression on me and my work, to this day. After my B.A., I pursued my M.A. program at Mysore University in Mass Communications. My interest in pursuing higher education in the field encouraged me to apply to an M.S. Program in Mass Communications at the Iowa State University (Iowa, USA). This was my first experience as a student in an international academic setting, which opened up more doors in terms of pursuing social science research. The M.S. program at Iowa State further piqued my interest in studying the effects of mass media (new or digital media, in particular). This led to me pursue my doctoral (Ph.D.) program at the Pennsylvania State University (Pennsylvania, USA). After 6-years of in-depth study, in 2012, I embarked upon an academic career as an Assistant Professor at the University of Connecticut. My current research focuses on the effects of new media technologies (interactive media, electronic-health and mobile-health communication technologies) and how they affect us (both as individuals and as a society). I currently teach graduate and undergraduate courses on Computer-Mediated Communication and Mass Communication Systems.

2. As a gold medalist right from your Bachelor's degree, Postgraduate degree and various other laurels in the field of teaching communication, what were the pointers of motivation?

A primary source of motivation has been my desire to learn. In several classes that I took at NMKRV, I still distinctly remember those “Aha!” moments that come from insightful learning. Experiences like that continue to motivate me to learn, teach, share and communicate. I have been blessed with some of the best teachers, guides, and mentors, at every stage of my academic career, who have been a great source of inspiration and motivation. My cohort of classmates, and fellow “kindred-spirits”, along with an extremely supportive family, have all been tremendous sources of motivation.

3. What were the factors that made you take up communication as a subject and to pursue it till the end to become an academician?

Communication encompasses every aspect of our lives, whether it is face-to-face, mass media, or newer media forms (mobile, social media, virtual reality, games, etc.). I was always fascinated with how ideas can be conveyed effectively -- both via media (channels) and via messages (content) – to influence how people feel, think and behave. This prompted me to pursue an academic career in communication and media studies.

4. Tell us about your experience as a student of journalism at NMKRV College for Women.

Studying journalism and NMKRV was an eye-opening experience at many levels. It was one of my first forays into exploring some of the fundamental theories behind communication, along with an opportunity to appreciate the practical application of journalistic practices in everyday media. Learning about the 5Ws and 1H, the SMCR model, the inverted pyramid format of news writing, reporting and editing stories for Vaartha Vaahini, understanding the importance of media laws (e.g., Article 19, freedom of speech) and its role in a democratic society...I could go on! The journalism course at NMKRV laid a solid foundation on which I could further shape my academic interests. Further, all the courses that I took at NMKRV in Journalism, Psychology and Optional English, wonderfully complemented each other. Even to this day,

I rely on all three disciplines to inform and guide my work.

5. Why didn't you get into mainstream media but take up academics.

I was always fascinated with the underlying theoretical principles that shape media messages and how they affect audiences (or users). What really intrigues me is how we can apply a scientific approach to understand, explain and predict what the mainstream media do on an everyday basis. In a sense, I see mainstream media (and their products – whether it is mobile apps, websites, TV shows, publications, etc.) as my “laboratory”. Whereas, my role as a social scientist, is to examine those products and measure their impact on individuals and society. I also enjoy interacting with students, teaching and learning together with the larger scholarly community of students, peers, mentors and colleagues. These factors drew me toward an academic path.

6. Your take on the present day media especially the digital media.

The world of digital media is fascinating! I think it is a very exciting time to be part of this information (digital media) economy, where all of us get to produce, consume and distribute information via communication technologies. At the same time, given its exponential growth, immense reach and potential for misuse, the field is in urgent need of people who can study its impact, systematically. Both in theory and in practice, we need to build more media literacy, where we can educate ourselves and others of the pitfalls and limitations of digital media. We need a greater understanding of how technological advancements come with inherent trade-offs, and how we can proactively protect ourselves and others from the negative effects of digital media.

7. Your advice to the present day communication students and budding students.

Never shy away from asking questions. Stay curious, strive to keep learning and having fun!

After a childhood sickness, Annie was labeled as the town idiot and raped, the brother of her rapist decided to make amends, not knowing that he would fall in love with her and learn her secret. Once a beautiful little girl, she was now a pariah. After a childhood illness that leaves her deaf, her deafness goes undiagnosed because she had the skill of lip-reading and understanding. But the skill only made people think she was an idiot.

The story has a very unique romantic genre. In a world of romance novels with two physically perfect protagonists, finding a story where the female protagonist is deaf was refreshing. Anderson also handles difficult topics (the rape) very well.

Annie's disability makes her a more attainable character because no one is perfect. The part in the story when Alex (the male protagonist) discovers Annie in the attic for the first time is the most appealing. She is completely different than the quiet insecure woman. In her special place, her potential to live just like everyone else flourishes. Also the guilt that Alex feels is justly deserved and he becomes more likeable as he owns up to how incredibly wrong he was about Annie.

NIDHI NADIG | BA

KGF (Kolar Gold Fields), an action, drama, thriller, directed by Prashanth Neel, written by Shivgopal Krishna and produced by Vijay Kiragander under the banner Hombale Films, has taken a record start at Kannada box office. It is the first of the two-part series. The film starts with Raja Krishnappa Bhairu urff Rocky, born into a below poverty level home, who has made up his mind to become rich and powerful as wished by his dying mother. He arrives at Mumbai to accomplish his dreams and desires in the 1960's.

The film's first half though fast-paced, does seem a little long. But the climax sets up the right premise for the second half of the film. The most thrilling part is its screenplay, with the non-linear design keeping the viewers preoccupied. The growth of the hero is shown steadily and the makers have kept a strong story-telling pattern right through, which keeps pace with the narrative.

Yash as Rocky lives his character to the fullest and has the crowd rooting for him with his majestic screen presence. Rocky Bhai's character is an epitome of hyper masculinity. The movie is filled with Goosebump inducing scenes and powerful dialogues. All these elements add gems to the crown and make it a record breaking blockbuster of 2018, and the fans are now eagerly waiting for the release of the sequel.

FROM THE PRINCIPAL'S DESK

I wish you a very happy 2019 and may this New Year bring all joy, happiness and prosperity to all of you. This academic year we introduced five certificate courses which are mandatory for the I and II year UG students and they were conducted after the completion of the semester exams. The courses were well received by the students, thus giving us the inspiration to go ahead with such courses in the future also.

The College is undergoing technological changes with the SAP being introduced at all levels: administration, academics and examinations.

Vartha Vahini is having a special feature of introducing the Alumni Achievers. We hope that these interviews of the achievers will definitely inspire the students to make remarkable progress and succeed well in their chosen fields.

Dr. G.S.Suresh has published six papers in the peer reviewed Reputed International journals. The details are as follows:

Carbon-Nanotube-Encapsulated LiTiOPO₄ Composite Electrode for Aqueous Rechargeable Battery Applications, Rangaswamy Puttaswamy, Dr. Gurukar Shivappa Suresh, Prof. Kittappa Malavalli Mahadevan, Prof. Yanjerappa Arthoba Nayaka, Chemistry Select, 2018, 3(11), 3056-3069.

A biosensor based on a graphene nanoribbon/silver nanoparticle/polyphenol oxidase composite matrix on a graphite electrode: application in the analysis of catechol in green tea samples, Shadakshari Sandeep, Arehalli Shivamurthy Santhosh, Ningappa Kumara Swamy, Gurukar Shivappa Suresh, Jose Savio Melo and Nelligeri Arkeswaraiah Chamaraja, New J. Chem., 2018, 42, 16620-16629.

Reduced MWCNTs/Palladium Nanotubes Hybrid Fabricated on Graphite Electrode for Simultaneous Detection of Ascorbic Acid, Dopamine and Uric Acid, CD Shruthi, Y Venkataramanappa, GS Suresh, Journal of The Electrochemical Society, 2018, 165 (10), B458-B465.

Synthesis of 2-[1H-indol-2-yl(1H-indol-3-yl)methyl]phenol and Its Application in Aqueous Rechargeable Lithium-Ion Batteries, Vijeth Rajshekar Shetty, Anil Kumar, Gurukar Shivappa Suresh, and Kittappa Malavalli Mahadevan, Chemistry Select, 2018, 3, 8363-8372.

Naphthol bis-indole derivative as an anode material for aqueous rechargeable lithium ion battery R. Anil Kumar, R. Vijeth Shetty, G. S. Suresh, K. M. Mahadevan, Advanced Materials Letters, 2018, 9(11), 823-830.

Dr. G.S.Suresh has presented six papers in the National and International conferences. The details of his presentations are as follows.

One paper in International conference on Electrochemistry in advanced materials, corrosion and radiopharmaceuticals (CEAMCR-2018), at DAE Convention Centre, Anushaktinagar, Bhabha Atomic Research Centre, Mumbai, India in the month of Feb 2018.

Two papers in Two day National Conference on Advanced Material for health, Energy and Environment AMHEE-2018, at JSS Science and Technology University, Mysore on 23rd and 24th Mar -2018

Three papers in National Conference on Non-Conventional Energy Sources-the need of the hour NCES-2018, Sri Siddaganga College of Arts, Science and Commerce, in Feb-2018.

Two papers in 10th Annual Conference of Karnataka Science and Technology Academy 2018, jointly KSTA and REVA University, Bangalore held in the month of Jan 2018.

Two papers in National Conference on Emerging Trends in Material Science ETMS-2018, KLE Society's S. Nijalingappa College, Bangalore held on 5 October 2018

VGST has sanctioned a Research Project entitled "Development of anode materials for rechargeable Lithium-ion batteries" Sanctioned amount is Rs. 40,00,000=00.

Ms. Nalini was awarded Ph.D. degree from Kuvempu University for the thesis entitled "Electrochemical bi-osensors for the detection of bio molecules and cancer biomarkers” on 16th June 2017.

Ms. Nandini was awarded Ph.D. degree from Kuvempu University for the thesis entitled “Metal nanoparticles for the construction of enzymatic biosensors” on 19th June 2017.

- Attended Board of Studies meeting at Mount Carmel College on 7th August 2018 and 5th January 2019
- Attended Board of Studies meeting at Smt. VHD Central Institute of Home Science College on 26th September 2018
- Chief Guest for National Conference on Emerging Trends in Material Science ETMS-2018, KLE Society’s S. Nijalingappa College, Bangalore held on 5 October 2018
